How has Bess impacted the supply chain?

The acceleration of investment and construction of BESS has led to bottlenecks along the supply chain. The high investment in the BESS industry has brought with it great opportunities and challenges while providing added security to grid infrastructure. Investment in BESS is predicted to continually grow over the course of the 2020s.

Why do we need a Bess system?

BESS are able to store excess energy produced in periods of low demand, which can be discharged into the grid during periods of high demand. BESS operators can therefore receive financial returns for meeting surging energy needs. The acceleration of investment and construction of BESS has led to bottlenecks along the supply chain.

Is the adoption of Bess a good idea?

Have you read? Presently, the adoption of BESS is low, and the growth of adoption is less than desired. As per the International Energy Agency (IEA), global BESS capacity was 85 GW at the end of 2023 and needs to reach 1200 GW by 2030 to enable seamless grid-integration of renewable energy, with net-zero 2050 emissions scenario as a target.

Will Bess projects have lower replacement costs in 2024?

With the reduction in costs, BESS project operators would be prudent to ensure the replacement costs of their assets are accurately valued for 2024 and declare updated values to their insurers. BESS projects operating for several years may have lower replacement costs in 2024 than they had earlier.
