Given that Seychelles is a tropical country receiving large amounts of sunshine - an average 6.9 hours of sunshine per day, and seven hours on average per year, according to the local meteorological office - there is great potential to replace at least some of the current oil-generated (and polluting) electricity with solar energy systems.

So, reducing energy consumption can inevitably help to reduce emissions. However, some energy consumption is essential to human wellbeing and rising living standards. Energy intensity can therefore be a useful metric to monitor. Energy intensity measures the amount of energy consumed per unit of gross domestic product.
